Dear Parents:

As a school district, it is our goal to promote a community of inclusivity and acceptance in order to create a learning environment where all students feel valued and welcomed. Every student who walks through our hallways is a valued member of our school community.

The District takes proactive strides to be as inclusive as possible and create a learning environment where all feel welcomed. With this in mind, we have invited Aidan Key, the director of Gender Diversity, an organization providing education to teachers, staff, counselors, and administrators regarding gender-inclusive schools, to discuss the topic of gender identity with parents and adults in the community. Aidan has provided coaching to our teachers and administrators and we have found it incredibly enlightening. We look forward to providing the same opportunity for parents and our community. Together, we can make great strides toward inclusion and acceptance if our students hear the same messages at school and at home.

Aidan’s presentation will provide a basic framework around which to have a better and more accurate understanding of gender identity and gender expression.
